SPRING PRODUCTION SALE

Bulls & Replacement Heifers

FEBRUARY 22, 2024

DV Auction

www.dvauction.com

Thank you for your interest in our sale! After several years of historic drought, tough cattle prices and expensive inputs, we are feeling very fortunate to have maintained our herd. We made the last few years work with lower quality feed and dry ground, and the cattle have proven to be resilient and able to bounce back when the rains came and feed quality improved.

You'll see a little less performance in this set than we are used to, but the genetics are there, and the calves out of these bulls will be as good as you've come to expect from us. As always, our bulls are developed consistent and steady, with our goal to have them in great shape for turnout without causing issues from overfeeding and getting them too heavy. We want them to go right to work for you and last for many breeding seasons.

We genuinely appreciate each and every customer, and look forward to a greener future together!

We decided to sell these spring bulls first in the sale so they would get some attention before the big boys rolled in. This 321 is no slouch and can hold his own. Here's a bull with a great set of numbers that has a great look & is built how they all should be. His dam is our next donor who's completely knocked it out of the park with her previous calves. This guy is the kind we are proud to offer, and plan on making more of.

We have been loving the calves we've seen out of Redhill 672x, and this bull came out just as we expected. We bought his dam from Trinity Farms- we love what she gave us for her first calf. This guy is soft and smooth- lots of power in a very sound, attractive package. He'd be great on heifers, but wouldn't be a slouch on cows either. He is really quiet & has been fun to watch grow- he'll be a big pretty bull when he's grown- so will his calves

Here is a TJ Frosty bull out of a first calf heifer we are excited about. He is really starting to grow into himself. He is thick and long bodied without being a big framed bull. His dam is a Hoot x Cowboy Logic embryo and the combination is really working. These are sound, big bodied cattle that really work. This guy would be awesome on heifers, and he has enough growth to put some pop into all of his calves.

If you are looking for a sleep all night calving ease bull, here you go. He's out of a first calf heifer and hasn't done a bad job hanging with the higher powered Simmental and SimAngus calves. He is sired by the up and coming Hoffman Thedford out of a Baldrige Bronc cow. He is really gentle and correct- I think he'll be really impressive as he matures. He'll handle some heifers late spring, but will need a little more time before breeding cows.

Another TJ Frosty bull out of a first calf heifer. This guy is fancy and has the white face so many like to see on the Simmi cattle. We call him Freckle Foot because he has a few flecks of white on each fetlock. He's got a cool look to him and is just starting to really turn on the growth.

I expect him to grow into a big, smooth bull that is well-balanced and correct. These Frosty calves are really popular for good reason.

For being the youngest calf in the group, he isn't the smallest or least mature- he will be happy to go to work and make some really nice Sim X calves for you. Here is another good heifer bull, this time a purebred Simmental. He's one that would be best for a summer or fall turnout, just a bit later maturing than some of the big dogs. He's gentle and built right. Comes from a really nice young cow who is out of a consistent line of cows. His sire is out of a really fertile, easy doing cow who has been a ranch favorite for years. Sound structured and built to last.

He managed to pull a muscle when we clipped for pictures, he is healing up well and we will guarantee him sound by turnout or make it right if he isn't. He will add pounds to every calf- he's been at the top of the growth curve consistently in this group.

There will be a couple of bidders that would like for you to skip past this guy- I wouldn't recommend it. This guy is good from every angle. He packs a lot of performance in a very stylish, very sound package. He is thick, deep, easy doing and nice to be around. This is a very flexible, long strided bull that catches you harder and harder the more you study him. No matter what you want out of your next calf crop, this guy will deliver it.

Not a lot of white faced bulls in our bunch, but here is a good one! This is a smooth, easy doing bull with a typical simmental look. He has a lot of muscle but stays really smooth and easy fleshing. He will work as an improver on any kind you put him on. There is a lot of maternal power in this pedigree, and generations of good structure and nice temperament. We like this kind- you will, too.

Here is the big performer of the bunch. We took his purebred mom and bred her to SAV Cattlemaster and we're not surprised it worked. He has brothers working all over the countryside- they are really good cattle and definitely pass on their consistency. He has a little more frame than some we have in the sale, but he doesn't sacrifice muscle or capacity. He is really quiet and nice to handle- built sound and easy fleshing.

This is a great calving ease prospect by CCR Boulder. He is out of a first calf heifer that Paige showed. We call him Anton- he has a lot of eye appeal and is as smooth and well made as any in the sale. These Boulder calves are a little slower growing than the whoppers we have in this sale, but they are really nicely made and would be ideal for making a beautiful, consistent set of replacement females or even show steers. Very quiet!

Ole Big Hunk is such a doozy! I have had his footnote written in my head for awhile. This guy is a whale! So stout and thick you will do a double or triple take when you see him. Olivia showed him as a calf- he is ridiculously gentle- if he was a horse we'd say he has more whoa than go. He does know what the ladies are, and will be a great breeding piece. He's built to last and will add pounds in all the right places and lots of bone.

Great structure, lots of body length and power- all things you need in a good herd bull. This is a really cool made white faced bull, but he is a bit of a handful. Great out in the field, but get him alone and/or with pressure and he's a jerk. He was just a teeny bit nervous as a youngster, but has gotten more difficult to handle as he has gotten older. He is a solid heifer bull, and if you don't mind dealing with his attitude, you'll get some incredible calves out of him. A good ranch dog would set him right.

Here's Starsky- a twin to Lot 33. This guy came out looking like a bull, and managed to monopolize a bit bigger portion of the milk compared to his twin. He is very stout and rugged and his genetics are recognizable- he will make calves very similar to himself. Great maternal and growth in this line of cattle, and they are the kind that can work to tighten up the look and structure on a set of cows. He's very quiet, too.

He does get nervous with pressure, wants to be with other cattle and not in tight spaces- he will leave the pen by any means necessary. He'll do best out with the cows, and in a big pen of bulls in the off season. Little Sue is out of a first calf heifer that took a little time to come into herself as a mother. She was on the smaller side at weaning but is really starting to come on now. She is very correct, very feminine. We have been very impressed with the Cowboy Logic females, and Sue has all the makings of a great cow. A good friend says there's nothing prettier than red cows on green grass. If you can own a field full of cows as nice as this one, we might tend to agree. Liberty is an embryo daughter of our famous Hoot donor, by County O- she's as good in look, function and structure as anything we've had on the place. She calved 2 days before pictures, you can see what she is- always beautiful. Selling 1 conventional flush, minimum 6 transferrable eggs.
